

Common Buckeye

These are some of my favorite regional butterflies. They arrive quite late in the season (mid-August, usually), and I tend to see them more in the vineyards than in the garden.

The distinctive eyespots make these quite mesmerizing, and I love the contrasting combination of the orange and purple. What treasures!

